Photo Courtesy: Frederick M. Brown / Getty Images On the air since 1956, The Price Is Right has revealed one of the favorites and more lasting from America. A «Game Show.â € The games are fun and easy to play, and the competitors could be your grandmother or the boy next door. And what's better than watching Drew Carey make jokes while sipping your morning coffee? Of course, every successful television show has its right dose of secrets that producers do not want the public to know. We discovered some rare facts about â € œThe price is right »that you've probably never knew from spectators at home. The price is right debuted in 1956 on the NBC and since the beginning was successful. During a 10 year series, the show has broadcast more than 11,000 episodes, more than Jeopardy! And Wheel of Fortune in the same time frame. Photo Courtesy: Archive Photos / Getty Images The show has moved to ABC towards the end of the first decade, before finding a permanent home on the CBS. Without lack of competitors, it seems that the price is right is not even remotely close to the end of his life. It's a good thing, because it always reports A «Fun! A» When you feel Drew Carey shouting: A «Get off! 1972, and the public adore it. In 1987, after going on vacation and left that the gray roots of him took the upper hand, he decided to stop coloring his hair for the show. He had received many compliments for his natural shades of gray. Photo Courtesy: Jesse Grant / Wire Image / Getty Images The NBC gave him the ok to embrace his white hair, and Barker seems to have turned into a "silver" fox "during the night. In fact, a viewer said he "must have spent an infernal night!" Curiously, listening ranked after his hair became natural. Many spectators who look at the show do not realize that everything that a competitor wins at the price is It is subject to taxation. Of course, they still get money or objects that they didn't have, but the amount they retain is never as high as the one declared on the show. Photo Courtesy: Frederick M. Brown / Getty Images The state of California sees all the prizes as a taxable income, so therefore He must pay taxes on the products based on the retail price of everything they won. Apparently, some winners have refused entire prizes just to avoid dealing with it. A man refused $ 10,000 because he didn't want to give up half his former wife. One of the iconic lines of Bob Barker of the show comes as the roll of credits: "Remember to do what your pets stowed â €
