They may seem verbose or bulky, but they should be in your "essential reading list" as they are your "stone set" legal companions who cannot be confused by any company under any circumstances. The various issues of minor but important rules regarding daily operational activities are mentioned in the scraps of residential society. Name and address This section informs us of the procedure for naming, changing the name, classification, changing the address and exhibiting the company committee. There are detailed lists of all the functions required by the Administrative Committee, the President and the Secretary of the Company. The laws on society may vary from one state to another in their details, but the basic framework and nomenclature remain the same. The company's duties and powers are specific rules of the common seal and the incorporation of the company as the detention of acquisition, detention and disposal of the property, to stipulate contracts and other legal proceedings. Otherwise, as a member you have the right to ask for a copy from your company. Interpretation The meaning of the nomenclature, that is the exact definition of commonly used terms (common areas, sinking fund, active member) so as to legally distinguish the common use of words in the context of a housing cooperative. The BYE laws of the housing company are provided and approved by the higher authorities (government bodies, legislative authorities).
